

GUIDELINES FOR MALE CAMPERS

In review of your roster for your upcoming camp out, we noted that your roster included male volunteers. We are glad they are interested in supporting your troop and to assist in making this the best campout possible, here are a few guidelines for camping with adult males:

- Adult males need to sleep in a separate sleeping facility. This can be a room in the cabin that has a door that closes or no visible line of site to campers, sleeping in a separate facility, or pitching a tent near your site.
- Restroom time needs to be designated specifically for the male. Many troops post a sign on the restroom or shower that indicates – Men only - and have another attending adult redirect girls who want to go into that area during the restricted time. Some sites have restrooms that can be designated for men for the length of your stay.
- Of course, using latrines in outlining areas or cabins not rented is also available for male campers.

Here are the options at our campsites:

Camp Sugarbush

- Lodge – There is a separate sleeping area with restroom
- Shadynook – There is a separate sleeping area
- Raccoon Roost – there is a separate sleeping area
- Trading Post – there are sleeping bunks in the Trading Post; there are no restroom facilities for this location
- Pitching a tent in front of the unit and using latrine areas not being used by othercampers
- Using a camp cabin not rented for the weekend

Camp Ledge wood

- Red Oak – separate sleeping area and the handicap restroom can be designated
- White Oak – separate sleeping area and the handicap restroom can be designated
- Moss Ledge – bunk house and the handicap restroom can be designated
- Chalet – separate sleeping area and latrine can be designated
- Seiberling – separate sleeping area and latrine can be designated
- Cook’s Cabin – Separate sleeping cabin
- Pitching a tent in front of the unit
- Using a cabin not rented for the weekend

Camp Timberlane

- Tall Timbers - Girls could sleep in the bunk houses with the Adult Females. Males could sleep in the general area. Restroom can be designated.
- Pinecrest - There is a separate sleeping area – the restroom in Edgewater can be used.
- Green Meadows – There is a separate sleeping area and restroom (seasonal availability)
- Cherry Hill – There is a separated area for adults and a restroom
- Oak Cliff – can use a separate tent site and there is a men’s room in the lower level of Cherry Hill
- Edgewater Program Center is available. There is a separate sleeping area and separate men’s restroom available.
- Pitching a tent in front of the unit
- Using a cabin not rented for the weekend

It is important that all the parents of the girls going to camp are aware that there will be adult male(s) attending and what arrangements have been made for them.

We hope this helps in your planning process and makes it easier for your dads or other adult males to attend. We do appreciate their time and commitment to attend this event.
